

Dear Hiring Manager,

I am writing to apply for the UI/UX Designer position. I'm excited about this opportunity because it combines two things I enjoy most: understanding how people use digital products and turning those needs into clean, practical, and user-friendly interfaces.

I have experience designing and building web applications, working with tools such as Figma, alongside HTML, CSS, Tailwind CSS, React, Next.js, and other modern web technologies. My development background has also helped me understand what is actually possible to build, allowing me to design interfaces that are not only visually appealing but also practical and consistent for developers to implement.

I'm comfortable working with components, layouts, responsive design, and reusable UI patterns. I also enjoy taking a design from an initial idea or wireframe through to a polished interface, while paying attention to usability, accessibility, spacing, consistency, and the overall user experience.

What interests me most about this role is the opportunity to work on real client-facing products, contribute to a shared design system, and communicate design decisions clearly. I'm comfortable receiving feedback, explaining the reasoning behind my choices, and improving a design based on user and client needs.

I would appreciate the opportunity to bring my combination of design and development experience to your team and contribute to products that are both useful and enjoyable to use.

Thank you for considering my application. I look forward to the opportunity to discuss how I can contribute to your team.

Kind regards,
Fiston Sano
